GENERAL MAHONE AS A COOK .-Jack Cohen sends the following to the Atlanta Journal from Washington:

Although Chamberlain has the finest chef in the city, and charges the high-est prices, Mahone will not eat af er est prices, Mahone will not eat af er him. He has a standing permission to cook his own meals, which he generally does. He is a picturesque figure, standing over Chamberlain's big range with a cook's apron tied around his waist. He prepares a number of old Virginia dishes for himself every day and Senator Stewart, of Nevada, always helps him eat them. Broiled ham and eggs and breakfast hominy is his specialty, and he boasts that he is it is only man in Washington who knows how to cook rice like a South knows how to cook rice like a South C rolina negro. Such is the man that has stopped all legislation on a public printing office for the past ten years.

AN UP-TO-DATE HOME.-Jarvis B. Edson, the well-known patent expert and manufacturer of recording steam gauges, has just built a new house which cost $55,000 and is replete with mechanical devices. In the basement is an electric plant to generate electricity, which will be used for heating and illuminating the house. Electricity will do the cooking in the kitchen, on the top of the house. The kitchen is equip-ped with aluminum utensils. The engine will also operate a refrigerating or cold sir system, which in the sum-mer will extend all over the house. Electric bells, electric dumb-waiters, an electric passenger elevator and electric ventilating fans are among the comforts provided. The roof of the house has been arranged for a summer garden, and will be illuminated during the season .- The Engineer (New York). Bucklen's Arnica Salve.
